Medical University*

Arkhangelsk

27.05.2026

Medical University library was founded in December 1932 at the same time as the university itself.

The story begins from the gift of Arkhangelsk Doctors society. We got more than 22.000 books, dissertations and journals to establish the library. The initiators of this noble cause were obstetrician-gynecologist Alexander Andreevich Anufriev and surgeon Mikhail Vasilyevich Alferov.

The library occupied two rooms on the third floor of the central building. One housed a reading room, the other a subscription desk. The staff consisted of two employees: a director and a librarian.

During the Great Patriotic War (1941–1945) the university was faced with a challenging task: to continue training qualified doctors with a shortened, four-year training period.

As of January 1, 1941, the library's total collection consisted of 55,941 books and journals, including 15,320 copies of educational literature and 13,528 copies of scientific medical literature.

In August 1942, the library caught fire during a bombing raid. More than 8,000 books and magazines (6,771 books and 1,537 magazines) were destroyed.

The library's collection needed to be restored.

The daily, painstaking work began—so routine, often unnoticed by readers, yet so important to everyone who visited to the library.

Despite all the difficulties the librarians faced in their work, they managed to preserve the library's core literary collection. Valuable publications from the late 19th and early 20th centuries were preserved: a rich collection of old Russian medical books and medical dissertations, sets of the "Military Medical Journal," and other magazines and newspapers. The staff's enthusiasm and love for their work helped them overcome any difficulties.

The library contributed to the common cause of training qualified medical personnel in the difficult conditions of wartime.
